Need of Elasticity.

"I hope a way will be found to make for flexibility and elasticity, so that rates may be adjusted to meet unusual and changing conditions which cannot be accurately anticipated. These are problems incident to unfair practices and to exchanges, which madness in money have made almost insolvable. I know of no manner in which to effect this flexibility other than the extension of women that the strike was virtually 100 the Chicago and North-western and the Salt Lake line of the Western and the Salt Lake line of the Union Pacific, were annulled, the rail-roads generally reported slight interruption of transportation as a result of the shopmen's strike. Strikers were reported at various points to be straggling back to the old jobs in uncertain numbers, but these reports reflected no weakness in statements from union headquarters, where Mr. Jewell reiterated his annumer in which to effect this flexibility other than the extension of the powers of the tariff commission, so that it can adapt itself to a scientific and wholly just administration of the law.

"I am not unmindful of the constitutional difficulties. These can be met by giving authority to the chief executive, who could proclaim additional duties to meet conditions which the Congress may designate. The grant of authority to proclaim would necessarily bring the tariff commission into new and enlarged activities, because no executive could discharge such a duty except upon the information acquired and recommendations made by this commission. But the plan is feasible and the proper functioning of the board would give us a better administration of a defined policy than ever can be made possible by tariff duties prescribed without flexibility."

Women Back Strike.

Mr. Jewell exhibited telegrams from women's auxiliaries of shop crafts organizations expressing support of the strike. He announced also the first sympathetic walk-out by exhibiting messages informing him that 2,500 molders employed on railroads had joined the ranks of the strikers.

The temporary injunction order issued by Federal Judge English at East St. Louis was directed toward strikers on the Illinois Central at Mounds, Centralia, Mattoon, East St. Louis and other points in the southern Illinois district.

Protectionist Policy Meant. By the phrase "administration of a defined policy." the President means in his own case a protectionist policy. The evils of a tariff law are not usually of principle. The President has the greatest opportunity an American President has ever had to overcome the traditional objections in Congress to the giving up by Congress of the task of making tariff bills. Heretofore the nower has not out of politics if the subject could be handled by a tariff commission.

Chicago, in the past twenty-four hours, experienced its first outbreaks of violence in connection with the strike. A mob of strikers and sympathizers, which included many women, attacked and attempted to burn the homes of two Illinois Central employes at Burnside, who refused to join the walk-out. Police dispersed the mob after Mrs. Julia Gabel, fifty-nine, wife of one of the Illinois Cennine, wife of one of the Illinois Cen-tral men, held the attackers at bay

Despite numerous outbreaks by strikers there was a general impresable debate, among them, wool, cotton, sugar, hides and dyes. There also remains to be considered the provision; relating to valuation, the House having adopted the American valuation and the Senate committee recommending the foreign valuation plan.

The provision of the bill authorizing the President to take cognizance of the provision of the bill authorizing the conditions abroad and to readjust the administration of the tariff also has still to be considered.

vived his campaign of last summer to make Washington a weedless city. The Commissioner announced that the health and police departments will work together in carrying out this summer the act of Congress which makes it unlawful for the owners of vacant land in the densely populated sections of the District to permit weeds to grow on their land to a greater height than four inches. Already the health department with its inadequate corps of in-spectors, has served 1250 ptices on owners that they must remove weeds from their property.

In this connection, Commissioner Oyster also appealed to house-holders to co-operate in beautifying the city by keeping front lawns trim and tidy.

This is the time of year, he pointed out, when visitors come to Washington in large numbers. Because this is the National Capital, he said, tourists, naturally, expect to see a cleaner and better kept city than the average.

With the aid of the health department and the police, Commissioner Oyster was successful last summer in having unsightly weeds removed from hundreds of vacant plots in all sections of the city, and is hopeful of achieving equal results this year.
